

William Cooper Bill Ferguson Aboriginal activists

Our History and the Christian Connection

Before the 1960s, Australia's indigenous people were not allowed to vote, not counted in the census figures and didn't have the same rights as white people. They were like nobodies in their own country. That is something very hard for those who are part of the majority to imagine. But William Cooper Yorta Yorta man and Bill Ferguson understood it well and did something about it.
